Taking Care

Taking Care provide personal alarm services for the elderly with 24/7 support to help users live independently in their own homes. Round the clock support is available at the press of a button, connecting the alarm user to the response centre who will contact the emergency services or keyholders should additional help be required.

Taking Care make the home safer by providing fall detectors, monitored home sensors and key safes as well as personal alarms. A medical helpline and medication information service is available should users have any concerns about their well-being or queries about the prescriptions.

Taking Care have over 30 years experience of personal alarm services and help more than 70,000 people live independent, active lives in the homes they love.
